Continuation of 11. does NOT place the application in condition for allowance because: Applicant argues "[A]pplicants wish to point out that the specification of the present application supports the structure recited in claims 1 and 11. In particular a structure where the metal wiring material of the via contact contains an additive which is not contained in the metal wiring materials of the two wiring layers ... Applicants submit that the application as claimed would not be obvious in view of Jan because the application supports having an additive of the via contact not being diffusing into the metal wiring layers. Therefore, Applicants respectfully submit that Jan does not teach or disclose the features of claims 1 and 11." This argument is not persuasive because claims 1 and 11 do not specifically claim any barrier layer between the via contact and the metal wiring layers to prevent the diffusion of the additive as shown in Fig. 6 of Applicant's drawing. Thus, the metal wiring layers of the claimed structure of claims 1 and 11 inherently include the additive within the metal wiring layers by diffusion from the via contact near the contact areas as shown in Fig. 9 of Jan reference. In other words, mere recognition of latent properties or additional advantages in the prior art does not render nonobvious an otherwise known invention. Therefore, a reasonable interpretation of the limitation "wherein the metal wiring of the via contact contains an additive which is not contained in the metal wiring materials of the at least two wiring layers" includes the structure taught by Jan and Chan et al.

For the above reasons, the rejection is maintained.
